Hongkong, September 29th, 1876.

To-par we resume consideration of the Ar ticles of the Chefoo Convention as stated the Courier. The tirst clause of Section II. sels forth that the position and interests of the Diplomatic representatives in Peking and the Consular officials in the open ports, in relation to the Chinese Authorities, are to be reorganised and placed on a different footing. Our contemporary adds that it is believed that the Tsung-li Yamen is to be abolished. and a seventh added to the Six Boards already in existence, equal to them in rank, to transact the affairs of foreign nations. It has been Sir Thomas Wade's sim to get 1-the Foreign representatives at Peking properly acknowledged, and it is certainly time. that they claimed the position rightfully jected to any farther exactions. At present that they could not find a place to stop. They belonging to them. It is only a matter for it is difficult sometimes to know where the were in a foreign boat and wherever they stop imposts end. Any arrangement which fails surprise that the various European Governments have so long submitted to allow to provide against the multiplication of inland their representatives to treat with inferior. officials at Reking, and thus tacitly give colour to Chinese assumptions, nanely, European hations are tributary tion, such as the reported increase of import to the occupant of the Dragon Throne. the Woosung railway by the Chinese Go-The second, and third clauses relate to Shanghai solely, and provide for the recognition of the Supreme Court in that settles ment by the Chinese Authorities; and the remodelling of the Mixed Court, changes that will no doubt be fully appreciated by the foreign residents there. The fourth and last clause is for the establishment of Mixed Courts in all the other open-ports. Of these conditions, which form the whole of the second section as far as it is at present known, the most important undoubtedly is that which provides for the substitution of a higher board for the Tsung-li Yames, but this cannot be regarded as a concession : it is only a right tardily claimed.

The portion of the Convention which na Reminiscences .. ! Rossini" turally excited most interest among the moreantile community, however, in the the six new landing places. The N. C. Daily News, however, gives some guesses at them which will probably prove very near the truth. It thinks there is no doubt at all that Tatung and Nganking in Anhwei, Hokow in Kiangsi, and Shasi in Hupeh will be four out of the six, and that it is likely a town known as Hobia, or Hobers, some 265 miles above Hankow, may turn out to be the fifth the sixth it will not pretend to conjecture. Of the five towns mentioned, Shasi appears to be by far the most important. It is large and populous, and is a great centre of trade, Messrs. Michre and Francis, in their report
